INTRODUCTION

.The Republic of South Africa, located at the southern tip of the African continent has an area of 471,443 Sq. miles. It has a population of 51.7 million people. Capital is Cape Town. Major industries are Diamonds, fruit and vegetables, copper, iron and steel are exported. The Republic of South Africa was established on May 31, 1961 after years as part of the British Empire.

RMC, in Philippi near Cape Town, started producing .22s in 1966. .22 production came to an end in 2005 because of a fire at the Swartklip factory in 2002. Because the factory was in a residential area they expedited the closing.

IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES (ELEY KYNOCH). This British manufacturer produced boxes for export to south Africa with special packaging for their markets. The boxes were in both English and Afrikaans. These may have been produced while South Africa was still part of the British Empire before 1961.

RONDEN MANUFACTURING COMPANY (RMC). RMC started producing .22 ammo in 1966.. All their boxes were in both English and Afrikaans. In 1971 they were bought out by Amcor and renamed Swartklip Products.

SWARTKLIP PRODUCTS. The RMC company was bought by Amcor in 1971 and their name was changed to Swartklip after a black rock in the area.

This is NOT a Dunn remake

It is an original document based on the three publications listed in the

IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES

These boxes were manufactured by Imperial Chemical Industries and imported into South Africa prior to 1966. The only indication that they were produced from South Africa is the bilingual printing in both English and Afrikaans. The end flaps show a rabbit and a deer. In later boxes the deer has been replaced by a rabbit as on the later Eley boxes.
